BECAUSE A NEW FOREVER AWAITS

You can reduce the feral cat population in Baltimore

Dear <Salutation>,

A dumpster is no place for a kitten. But it's not uncommon to find one there—buried among the trash.

No one deserves to be thrown away—not even a homeless kitten.

Homelessness isn't just a people problem. There are 185,000 feral cats in Baltimore.

I wish I could tell you that we are close to solving the problem. But we're not.

A female cat can have 3 litters a year with an average of four or more kittens in a litter.

That's a lot of kittens with no place to call home.

But by creating a catch and release spay and neuter program, we can reduce the cat population significantly. $35.00 will spay or neuter one cat in Baltimore. $70 will spay or neuter two.

Can I count on you to help spay or neuter <N1>, <N2>, or even <N3> feral cats in Baltimore?

Your gift means fewer kittens will be born this year on the streets of Baltimore. Your gift means fewer cats will die agonizing deaths from starvation or trauma caused by humans.

Your gift says you care about the suffering of feral cats left to fend for themselves in Baltimore, even little ones like Tiger.

A good Samaritan found Tiger in a storm drain outside her office.

Maybe her mama placed her there to shield her from the cold while she went off to hunt.

Maybe.

More likely some cruel person dropped her there—out of sight—out of mind. She would have frozen to death if someone hadn't heard her cries.

You can reduce the number of kittens born on the streets of Baltimore this year by helping install a catch and release, spay and neuter program, here in Baltimore. But you must act fast. Winter is coming.

Without you the number of feral cats will only increase. Without you the suffering will continue.

Will you be a part of the solution and help reduce the feral cat population in Baltimore by making a gift today?

The feral cats of Baltimore deserve compassion and kindness, too.

With love and hope,

Tory Blake,
Tattle Tails Animal Rescue

P.S. Please make your gift before the end of the year when the cold weather really sets in. There are thousands of feral cats to be spayed and neutered and another winter is coming.
